

JONES AND COLEMAN IN QUARTER FINALS OF GOLF TOURNEY

Homans and Lehman Tee Off
First in Third Round

EIGHT PLAYERS LEFT

Hard to Decide Who Jones Will Have To Defeat

MERION CRICKET CLUB, South
Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 25—Bobby Jones was 1 up on Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, at the end of the nine holes in the third round of the national amateur championship tournament here this morning.

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—The question as to who—or whom—Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., must beat to win the national golf championship became somewhat of a mild guess as the boys swung into the third round of the play over the bunkered Merion course here today.

Eight players, including the great man himself survived, but missed among them were two most favored to give him a few frivolous moments of play, namely and to wit: George Von Elm, miscellaneous of Utah, Los Angeles and Detroit and George (Dead-pan) Voight of New York.

These latter two took it to their aristocratic chins yesterday in a most unexpected but quite emphatic manner, and from now on their only interest in the thirty-fourth annual renewal of what has come to be known as America's one-man tournament will be that of critical spectators or casual readers of the news dispatches at home.

Today's matches are:
Eugene Homans vs. John Lehman.
Charles Seaver vs. William McPhail.
Maurice McCarthy vs. Jess Sweetser.

Bobby Jones vs. Fay Coleman.
Offhand and without use of a trick niblick, I should say the day's play ought to produce its highpoint of excitement if any, in the match between Sweetser and McCarthy, both members of the metropolitan district, the former a bond salesman when bonds are selling, and the latter the son of an old-fashioned Irishman who is a professional on Long Island.

Jones doesn't figure to have any trouble, since the eighteen hole matches are all behind him, and the other scheduled matches today are in the nature of what the vaudeville managers call walkout acts.

In this tournament, as has been the case in the past several years, the gallery has been interested only in Jones. But today a new darling of the fairway ferrets has sprung up in young McCarthy. He is the audacious young man who wrote an epic page in golf history yesterday by going ten extra holes to eliminate the supposedly great George Von Elm. I say supposedly because the records show George has not gotten past the second round in the last four years, and this would seem to make him an Elk, with due apologies, and conceded putts.

LONDON TREATY NOW IN JEOPARDY, IS CLAIM

Collapse of Franco-Italian Negotiations Are Officially Announced

ARE UNABLE TO AGREE

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Collapse of the Franco-Italian naval negotiations, now officially announced at Geneva, jeopardizes the full effectiveness of the new London naval treaty ratified by the Senate only a few months ago.

This much was conceded here today by officials who have been following the efforts of France and Italy to get together with some concern.

By failing to agree between themselves on the size of their respective navies, the French and Italians reduce the naval treaty to a three-power agreement (Great Britain, United States, and Japan) and at the same time open the door to naval building beyond the treaty limits.

There is a clause in the treaty, insisted upon by the British admiralty, which permits both great Britain and the United States to build above the treaty limitations in case "other powers" not signatory to the agreement proceed to build up to a point that British policy deems dangerous to Britain's interests.

Both France and Italy are now building, and have been doing so industriously all this year.

Immediately after France refused to accept Italy's claim to parity at London, the Italian Government voted a 14,000-ton building program for this year. France countered soon after by preparing a 55,000-ton program.

There the situation has rested while the French and Italian experts have continued their efforts to arrive at an agreement. Those efforts have now failed, and the situation is viewed in Washington with some uneasiness as to what the future holds.

Primarily, the Franco-Italian dispute is of far more concern to Britain than the United States, because of the British insistence that their navy shall always be equal to any two on the continent. But the rub is that if Britain is forced to build to meet French and Italian increases, the United States must also build if parity with Britain is to be attained and maintained.

The Hoover administration is now wrestling with the question of the naval budget. Having won the long-sought agreement for parity and seen it incorporated in the London treaty, the administration is now confronted with the question of finding the money to build up to that parity.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

An Executive Committee meeting of the Press League of Bucks and Montgomery counties will be held at the

CARL WILLIAM SEITZ, JR. WEDS MISS L. R. WEBER

Ceremony Took Place in Philadelphia Church
Yesterday

AN ATTRACTIVE AFFAIR

A wedding of interest to many local residents took place in the Church of Saints Peter and Paul, Spruce street, Camden, N. J., at ten o'clock yesterday morning, when Miss Louise R. Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Weber, of 351 Monroe street, became the bride of Carl William Seitz, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl William Seitz, of Pittman, N. J. Father Roch, a curate of the church officiated at the ceremony.

Miss Frances Elizabeth Weber, sister of the bride, attended Mrs. Seitz as bridesmaid, while Ernest Herzog, of Camden, N. J., was best man.

The bride was dressed in a stunning frock of royal blue toned flat crepe, made on the new lines, with high waist and low placed fullness in the skirt and having a bolero, with long tight sleeves. With this, Mrs. Seitz wore a close fitting hat and shoes of blue tone to harmonize with her costume and egg shell toned kid gloves and stockings as a contrast. She carried an arm bouquet of tea roses.

Miss Weber, the bridesmaid, wore a chic gown of wine colored crepe also made on the new lines, with long tight fitting sleeves and have a cape Bertha, the center of which in front was trimmed with ermine. Miss Weber also wore a close fitting hat and shoes of harmonizing red tone and egg shell toned stockings and kid gloves and carried arm bouquet of red roses.

Following the ceremony a reception and twelve o'clock dinner was served in the Hotel Walt Whitman, Camden, N. J., which was attended by the bridal party and members of the immediate family. Covers were laid for twenty.

Mr. and Mrs. Seitz have left on a ten days' tour of Washington, D. C., and other southern points of interest.
They will be at home to their friends after October 5, on Vine street, Camden, N. J.

Mrs. Seitz moved with her parents to Bristol about twelve years ago, having been born in Mahanoy City.
She attended St. Mark's school and later took up the art of hair dressing at the Stacy-Trent Academy, Trenton, N. J. She was employed for a time in the hairdressing business here, but previous to her marriage held an excellent position in the Edna May Beauty Parlor, Camden, N. J.

The bridegroom is connected in a responsible way with the Public Service of New Jersey.

Legion Makes Good Showing
at Doylestown Fair—Yardley Flower Show

Democrats Organize

To the tune of snappy drum beats, American Legion veterans from several counties and Trenton last night staged a monster military drill and drum and bugle corps contest at Doylestown that featured the second day of the eighth annual Doylestown Fair.

A record Wednesday attendance of 21,000 persons attended the day and night fair. Over 10,000 persons witnessed the horse races in the afternoon when the track record was shattered.

The Yardley Flower Show will be held today in the Municipal Building under the auspices of the Yardley Civic Club.

A committee will be present in the club rooms from 10 a. m. to noon, to receive the exhibits, which will be arranged, and the display will be open to the public from 3 to 9 p. m.

The following classes will be shown:
Best arrangement of: 1. Zinnias; 2.
Cosmos; 3. Marigolds; 4. Asters; 5.
Calendulas; 6. Roses; 7. Dahlias; 8.
Gladioli; 9. Delphinium. A best arrangement of flowers suitable for living room; B, best arrangement of flowers suitable for dining room; C, greatest variety of garden flowers arranged artistically in one bouquet; D, best winter bouquet of dried grasses, flowers or pods; E, best arrangement of wild flowers; F, best arrangement of any other fall flower not mentioned above; G, best arrangement of flowers by children between the ages of 10 and 15 years old.

This exhibit is being arranged by the Garden Committee of the Yardley Civic Club, under the chairmanship of Mrs. H. Stanley Worthington.

At the organization meeting of the Democratic County Committee held at Doylestown on Tuesday, it was decided to adopt a new plan of organization for that party, by organizing the county into three or five sub-districts, for the purpose of arousing more interest in the campaign.

Robert H. Grim, of Perkasie, was re-elected chairman of the county and Mrs. Irvin M. James, of Doylestown, was elected secretary together with James B. Fitzgerald, of Mechanics Valley. No treasurer was named.

Plans for the Fall campaign and the issues of the Democratic party in the State were discussed by the various speakers including John M. Hemphill, of West Chester, for Governor; Sedgwick Kistler, of Lock Haven, for United States Senator; George F.
Douglas, of Phila., for Judge of the Superior Court; Carroll B. Price, of Solebury, for State Senate; George MacReynolds, Doylestown, and John S. Lappan, South Langhorne, for State Assembly.

Joseph Auer, Jr., of Yardley, was exonerated yesterday at a coroner's inquest in Philadelphia of the death of a woman whom he had fatally injured in an automobile accident August 22 last.

The jury, under direction of Coroner Schwarz, came to its decision immediately after testimony had been presented. The verdict was that he could

AROUND THE WORLD TODAY

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—Relief was pushed today in the area around Stal-inbad, Turkestan, where an earthquake devastated several villages and left more than 1,000 families homeless.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 25.—German defense attorneys today will endeavor to conclude their arguments against the $40,000,000 damage claims for the wartime destruction of two New Jersey munition plants, now being heard before the German-American mixed claims commission.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Honorable Mrs. Victor Bruce left Heston Aerodrome today for a world flight via Japan, with her first stop scheduled in Vienna.

She hopped off at 7.10 a. m. (2.10
a. m. eastern daylight time.)

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—Frank B. Kellogg, former United States Secretary of State and author of the Kellogg Pact for the outlawry of war, today was elected by the League of Nations assembly council to serve a term of nine years as a judge of the permanent Court of International Justice.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Disclosure of a far-reaching plot by gangsters and former convicts to seize control of 9,000 beauty shops in Chicago and throughout the state was announced by police today with the capture of two alleged bomb terrorists.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 25.—Adolf Hitler, bold man of German politics and head of the Fascists, unflinchingly mounted the witness stand of the Supreme Court of the land today and proclaimed without hesitation that Fascism, through peaceful means, eventually was fated to conquer the nation.

Lily Rebekah Lodge To Give Card Party

Sea Scouts to Hold Regatta Here, Saturday

Bristol will be the scene of much activity on Saturday when the Sea Scouts of the three Sea Scout Ships assemble here to take part in the first regatta for Sea Scouts held in this county. The grounds and floats behind the Elks Home have been turned over to the Sea Scouts for this event. Bucks County Council, Boy Scouts of America, is making this regatta possible in order that the three Ships may gather together in an earnest worthwhile program of swimming, seamanship and boating.

S. S. S. Yankee Clipper, Robert Morris and Elks have heretofore been unable to see how competent their local Sea Scout neighbors are. Ever since news of this regatta reached the Ships much enthusiasm spread about and each Ship began laying plans of victory.

The Sea Scouts, B. S. A., the older boy division of the Boy Scouts of America, is taking hold of the advanced Scouts in Bucks County and offers to them an interesting, educational leisure time activity. All bound together by the Scout Oath these young men of Scouting will give Bristolians an opportunity to get to know what Sea Scouting is all about.

The Bucks County Boy Scout Council, under the authorization of its Publicity Committee, Dr. A. J. Strath-of Newtown, chairman, publishes a monthly known as "Salty Breezes." This publication will be made available to anyone interested in the Sea-Scout program.

SCOUTS AT FAIR MAKE GOOD SHOWING

Two Bristol Boys Participate in Indian Dance Attraction

LARGE NO. OF EXHIBITS

The 1930 Scout Exhibit at Doylestown Fair this year has many more articles than last year. Doylestown No. 2, Scoutmaster Isaac J. Vanartadalen, retains the Doylestown Fair Association cup for a second year through the Scouts securing 202 points.

Chalfont No. 1, Scoutmaster Kenneth Lane, was a very close second with 181 points.

Other county troops securing points were Kiegelsville No. 1, Churchville No. 1, Ship Robert Morris of Morrisville, Sellersville No. 1, Hulmeville No. 1, Trevose No. 1, Yardley No. 1, Newtown No. 2, Morrisville No. 3, Doylestown No. 1, and Warminster No. 1.

Through having exhibits that secured a total of 69 points, Scout Carl Leidy, of Doylestown No. 2, receives for a second year the Boy Scout statuette for the main prize in the individual group. Close to Carl Leidy was Scout Gilbert Carlin, of Chalfont No. 1, with 60 points. Among other winners close to the other two scouts are Walter Hefflerich, of Chalfont No. 1; Ernest Spokes, of Doylestown No. 2; Gerald Finney, of Churchville No. 1, and Irwin Vanartsdalen, of Doylestown No. 2.

On Tuesday the Buccoo Camp Bugle and Drum Corps received many rounds of applause before the grandstand both in the afternoon and evening.
Under the snappy leadership of Eagle Scout James Townsend, of Langhorne, the Corps was a credit to the Boy Scout Council. On Wednesday, Indian dancing was the attraction, with Eagle Scout Mahlon Detweiler, of Perkasie, beating the tom-tom, and Eagle Scout Carl Leidy, Doylestown, Scout James Hill and Scout Wayne Warner, of Bristol, as dancers. Today will see a presentation of wall scaling by Newtown No. 2, and rustic tower building by Chalfont No. 1. Friday will be a triple attraction with Yardley No. 1 offering a fire rescue, Trevose No. 1 demonstration in bow and drill fire-fighting, and Doylestown No. 2 presented a flint and steel stunt.

Each day sixteen scouts are serving in charge of the Scout exhibit and hobby show section, and also rendering messenger service. Tuesday, Langhorne No. 1 and Hilltown No. 1 were on duty. Wednesday saw Quakertown No. 1 and Cornwells No. 1. Thursday will be Newtown No. 2 and Hulmeville No. 1.

William Swan Given Testimonial Gifts by Men

William Swan, for several years head of the sheet metal and fuselage departments of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation, here, resigned his position a few days ago.

Last night a group of the men who were under his supervision at the Keystone plant, paid him an unexpected visit and presented him with a handsome white gold wrist watch, suitably engraved, and a leather traveling bag.
The gift was accepted with a few brief remarks by Mr. Swan, who expressed his surprise and also his pleasure at receiving the gifts.

A BUSINESS STRAW

Prosperity news is the news a news-hungry world is hungriest for today. Although conditions are not as bad today as they have been, even since the genesis of the post-war prosperity period, the unemployed and business watch eagerly for each ray of hope for the restoration of 1928 prosperity.

Such a ray of hope was found in the August increase of $38,000,000 over July in exports, which checked a four-months' downward trend in export trade. That means world markets are buying American goods again, an inevitable consequence of which must be increased production in American factories and lessened unemployment.

This sudden revival of export trade seems to substantiate the popular belief that talk of foreign reprisals in protest against the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill was exaggerated.

President Hoover points out that in the first seven months of this year exports were off about 30 per cent and imports about 5 per cent. But this dollar shrinkage of exports and imports is appreciably reduced by an average falling off of 15 per cent in wholesale prices in the markets of the world. So that on a quantity basis the world's trade does not show much decline from that of 1929.

What effect the new Canadian tariff schedule will have upon the trade and business of the United States remains to be seen. There is one certainty in the situation: If it makes the dominion more prosperous it will make the United States more prosperous.

MODERNIZING NEEDED

In nomination for the post of grand exalted recommender of improvements has been placed the name of the man who made a plea for a car window that could be opened without a crowbar. It goes without saying that every traveler in the cars indorses this idea without reservation, and earnestly implores the retention of its author as official reformer of the ways and means of railroad transportation.

There is, for example, this matter of the Pullman chair. To judge from the fact that a charge is made for the privilege of sitting in it, those who designed it are under the impression that it is comfortable. It is not.

There is the matter of ventilation, particularly in smoking compartments and cars. With so much air rushing by outside, it would seem that some scheme could be devised to get a little of it inside. But to date the happy medium seems unattainable.

Then there is the matter of bumps, or more accurately, jerks. On many of the luxurious trains, engineers indulge in a practice which plays havoc with the comfort of the passengers. The passenger's reaction is not unlike that of the boy on the end in a game of "whip." There ought to be some way to bring a train to a gentle stop, and to start a train without a standing broad jump that fairly shakes your back teeth loose.

This list of grievances could be extended ad infinitum, but if the evils set forth are corrected the best brains of the railroads will be occupied for many a day.

his—a rare caress from this most reserved person.

"That's my laddie," she said. "Sir George, I have often thought if you'd come back that first year—but then, how could you? It was probably better as it was, and now we'll take stock of what's left us."

"Very little, I'm afraid. The lawyer told me that I had nothing but Sandisbrae left."

"Did he so? There was a little something left over, that your father didn't spend. I let Sir Steele think he gambled it away one night he wasn't himself, while as a matter of fact I had it hid up the stair, in the tower."

"But that—" Sir George began.

"It's yours. It's no much, but it'll help."

"It's yours," he declared hastily. "It's all the widow's portion you have, Aggy. I'll never touch a penny of it."

Two obstinate Scots stared at each other. It was Aggy, Lady Sandison, who spoke first.

"You were ever a set laddie. There's no change in you."

"There will be no change in me. Agnes, Lady Sandison, must take her lawful share."

Agnes, Lady Sandison, glared at her stepson. "Such a to-do about a wee pickle money. Well, that's that, and now we come down to bare rock. Sandisbrae, even at the rent I have gotten out of them foreigners, won't keep you at the first. You've the taxes to pay, and one or two debts. At the end of the second year you'll have a nice bit left over, but it will be at the end of the second. What's your plan?"

Sir George lifted his hands, and let them fall. "I have none as yet. I meant to go to my uncle and ask him."

"You'll get nothing," interrupted Lady Sandison grimly. "I was to him, myself. He'll do nothing."

Sir George blushed.

Lady Sandison gave him a keen look. "It wasn't because I asked him, that Lord Cheddar-Armstrong wouldn't do anything for his sister's son. Indeed, I didn't ask him outright. He came to the solicitor's office, to see about the settlement of the estate, and asked to see me. He was against you for the oil business. He considered that you had thrown the little money your mother had left you away."

"I did."

"And he said there was no more Armstrong money going that gait, and he asked me to tell you that he'd sons of his own to start in life. He wished you well but he didn't care to see you until you had made some effort to become a useful member of society."

"Meaning?"

"Marrying money, I take it."

"But how?"

Lady Sandison laughed. "He left that to you. He said something about your share of the family looks being all that the Armstrongs were responsible for, and they were the best assets you had."

Sir George looked considerably annoyed.

Lady Sandison smiled grimly. "He's a grand looking man himself, but I cannot see that he's getting much out of the wealthy marriage he made. His wife holds the purse strings tight, and his children all take after the mother! They'll not get far on their looks!"

"He can keep his money," growled Sir George.

"He will. He'd rather lose his religion than a single pound of it."

She looked again at her stepson. "It was then this America scheme came into my head. If we go away while the place is rented and earning, and leave my bit of money turning itself over and earning whilst we're in America, where nobody knows us, we could work and make a living."

Sir George looked at her. Aggy was clever. And after all Aggy was fond of him. He had no one on earth nearer than Uncle Charles and he had not a penny of his own, and Aggy was not offering him money, but a chance to earn some. Over here there was nothing but a chance to borrow and not much at that. He spoke, after a bit, slowly.

"By the Lord! An idea!"

"It's more," said Lady Sandison, "it's a certainty, for I have a trade that will make money any time. I'm a cook that could please a king. If the worst comes to the worst I'll please an American millionaire, and take some of his money back with me. And you—"

Then she broke off as she saw Sir George's face.

"You're a clever woman, Aggy, and your plan's not a bad one, except the part where you—cook. That will not be necessary. But you've forgotten one thing, and that's that I have nothing to offer anybody. Why, I'm too poor to pay my passage over, and no qualifications for a job if I were over."

"No qualifications!" Aggy's voice was full of scorn. "Do you never look in the glass?"

"Oh, come, Aggy," Sir George certainly was annoyed. "You are as bad as Uncle Charles."

"Lord Charles wasn't far wrong," declared Aggy judicially.

"Confound it, Aggy. We won't discuss that," Sir George said irritably. Then he thought for an instant. "Could your brother help us?"

"He'll get the chance at it," vowed Aggy.

"Well, that will be something," Sir George agreed. "By Heaven! I'd like to try! If I could raise the price. But I tell you frankly, Aggy, it's no use—I'm broke—flat."

"I can manage the passage money," declared Aggy abruptly. "If you think well of my plan. In fact," she added, looking at him cautiously, "I have the tickets in my purse."

"What?"

"I thought I'd risk it. It would be just a matter of refunding if you do refuse." She sighed with pleasure. "Oh, laddie, don't refuse me. Think what it means to me to have some one that belongs to me to do for!"

Sir George arose to his full height.

Trembling a little, Lady Sandison arose, too. Was he going to utterly annihilate her and walk out of her life altogether? For one moment she feared it. She was perfectly aware that this young man had come to her with one idea—to get the interview over and then never see her again, and she adored him. She knew that this was her last chance, and that only his poverty had given her that. Even now, poor as he was, if it occurred to him that this stout, middle-aged woman was practically proposing that they join forces against bad fortune, if he realized it meant saddling himself with her, would he do it? Aggy had no intention of being a burden, either emotionally or financially. She would pay her way, both in care and affection, in plans for his future.

In money as long as hers held out, or she could earn it. But would he tolerate even the slight bond of old affection and new interest? How would he know that she would ask nothing, accept nothing? One instant she trembled to think that he would refuse, the next she was able to breathe again.

"Aggy, you're an angel," said her stepson, "and I'll think it over."

She gazed up at him, a mist before her rather hard looking blue eyes. She was not one to give way to emotions, rather to disguise them. She pretended that she was gazing at him with curiosity, not affection.

"How tall will you be?"

"Six feet three," admitted Sir George.

"You'll be something to show America," said Lady Sandison, complacently.

"There are lots of tall Americans."

"No doubt," said Aggy, Lady Sandison, still with her absurd air of satisfaction. "America's a grand place, but the streets cannot be exactly crowded with beautiful young men that are six feet three!"

CHAPTER II

Robert Bailly MacBeth, stretched out on a wicker chaise longue, looked at his island.

When, as a poor young artisan, he had left Scotland to seek a land where he could "rise," there had been before him one ambition—a big place. Yet, curiously enough, great country estates—for as he gradually grew wealthy he had looked well about him—left him unmoved. None of these for Robert MacBeth. He wanted an island. To be surrounded by water; to be absolutely independent; to see his own little slice of the world set apart from the rest by nature's barrier of fast-running water, gratified something within him that he found difficult to explain. Probably his nationality accounted for most of it. Island born and bred, he had reverted to the ideals of his forefathers, to their love of blue water about a bit of green land.

Robert MacBeth shifted his eyes and moved his head and his short body slightly. Only when he did so did one notice that he was lying in a chaise longue because he must. He gave a sigh of pain as he slowly moved a leg. Arthritis, that now fashionable name for an old-fashioned disease, had him by the feet. He sank back with a groan, but he could now see Roberta, his only child, and the groan changed into a good, round oath.

MacBeth was a short, rather broad, Scot with gray eyes that were at once astonishingly lovely in color, with their deep fringe of black lashes, and both friendly and shrewd. He had black brows and a short clipped, red and gray mustache. He was quite evidently a personage, and knew it without openly exhibiting the naive conceit of the self-made Scot—yet he had made his way from day laborer to contractor and builder.

Two Reasons

why Pennsylvania Motorists are going

"STANDARD"

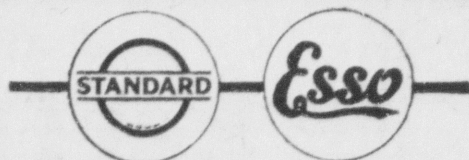

YOU do not have to look beyond "Standard" Gasoline and ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, to find the reasons for the growing demand for "Standard" products in Pennsylvania.

In neighboring states where "Standard" products have been longer known they are favorites over any other competitive brand, by more than two to one.

And now in just two years Pennsylvania motorists by the tens of thousands are casting their votes for "Standard" products, just as their fellow motorists in neighboring states have always done.

There is only one answer to account for this rapidly growing preference. "Standard" products are the result of over half a century of refining experience and are the best that can be produced with a technical laboratory and refining equipment which has no equal—backed by unlimited resources, and a thorough knowledge of the requirements of present day motors.

Radio Beam to Reveal Secrets of Heavens

Marconi Predicts Amazing Additions to World's Knowledge of the Physical Universe by Use of Waves Sent Millions of Miles Into Space.

TRENTO, Italy, Sept. 25.—Radio—the modern scientific miracle which enables men to converse from opposite ends of the earth—is destined to reveal the unknown secrets of the universe.

Marchese Guglielmo Marconi, the "father of radio," has just made this extraordinary prophecy before the Italian Society for the Advancement of Science.

Today practically nothing is known about other planets but, according to the inventor of wireless telegraphy, astronomers of the future will employ radio waves of the "beam" type to illuminate the dark mystery of the millions of miles of space beyond the world's atmospheric layer. Perhaps we may some day communicate with other planets by means of these radio "beam" waves.

Marconi agrees with other scientists that radio waves produced on the earth may travel these almost incalculable distances. He pointed out that light and heat waves from the sun penetrate to the earth's surface.

Some time ago Stormer, another eminent scientist, declared that electrified particles derived from the sun and influenced magnetically by the earth reflect electric waves from the earth after these passed the Heaviside and Kennelly layers. The former is located 100 miles above the earth's surface.

Marconi quoted Stormer on this phenomena and asserted that bands of ions at distances estimated at from 25,000,000 to 48,000,000 miles reflect these waves.

There are two varieties of radio waves that are purely terrestrial. These are the "ground" wave and the "echo." The former follows the surface of the earth and the "echo" often reaches the Heaviside layer.

However, a beam wave, it is believed, can be focused to travel in a straight line, penetrating the Heaviside layer and opening the road to entirely new discoveries about neighboring celestial bodies and the millions of miles of space that lie between our earth and them. This will become possible because of the reflective powers of the bands of ions outside the magnetic field of the earth.

"The existence of various reflecting layers," said Marconi, "is the best hypothesis on which to base an explanation of long-distance wave transmission which overcomes the curve of the earth. Layers capable of reflecting electric waves exist at heights varying with the hour of the day and season of the year."

"These layers also are influenced by the effects of light, by electric and magnetic activities of the sun and other causes, yet unknown."

ETHEL BARRYMORE MAY INHERIT MANTLE

By Alice Alden

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Will the rich mantle of the Barrymores and the Drews drape its graceful folds around the slim young shoulders of Ethel Barrymore Colt?

True To Traditions

The 18-year-old daughter of Ethel Barrymore, true to family traditions, has elected to make her debut not in a flower-decked ball-room but in the theatre, as a member of the cast surrounding her famous mother in a dramatization, by Daniel Reed, of Julia Peterkin's prize-winning novel, "Scarlet Sister Mary." And true to theatrical tradition that decrees that an artist should sacrifice personal charm and beauty to whatever facial and physical characteristics may be demanded by the script, both Ethels are going to play in blackface. Miss Barrymore will play the title role of the Carolinian negress in her vivid Odyssey from youth and a primitive joy in life to old age and a true spiritual understanding. Ethel the younger will take the important part of the mulatto child. This will mark the first occasion on which any member of America's famous royal family of the theatre has ever appeared in black-face make-up.

Shades of Glorious Past

One does not need to be spiritually inclined to imagine that an unseen audience will people the auditorium, or rather the stage, of the theatre in Cleveland on Aug. 29, when young Ethel makes her debut. Ethel Barrymore's mother, the brilliant, charming and graceful "Georgia" Drew, Georgia's parents, the famous John and Louisa Lane Drew, her father, the debonair and delightful Maurice Barrymore and her late grand-uncle, the never-to-be-forgotten John Drew, that grand, but ever young, old man of the American stage. If disembodied spirits have the power to materialize then surely these ghostly members of the Barrymore and Drew families will be on hand to see if their descendant is to keep burning the torch of the drama that has been held aloft by such worthy hands for so many generations.

Chose Own Career

Ethel Barrymore allowed her youthful daughter full power to choose her career and to indicate whether she wished to take her place in fashionable society or to face the rigors and arduous demands of the theatrical profession. Young Ethel completed her education at the convent at which both her grandmother and mother had been students and then went abroad to a fashionable finishing school in Italy. It was on her return to New York this summer that Ethel Barrymore's daughter made the momentous decision that has been of tremendous interest to theatre-goers throughout the world. Both Ethel and her brother John, have appeared abroad with much success, the latter winning praise from the most exacting of English critics for his wonderful "Hamlet."

From Convent to Stage

When Ethel Barrymore made her debut she was but a girl, not yet fifteen years of age. Family finances were instrumental in transposing a quiet child from the peaceful convent to the hurly-burly of theatrical life. Her first part was in "The Rivals" with her grandmother and uncle, John Drew. Her first important role came when she was all of fifteen. This was a part in "The Bauble Shop" with John Drew. Later she played with William Gillette and with Sir Henry Irving in England. She married Russell G. Colt, dren were born to them although she dren were born to the malthouse she had returned to the stage after the birth of the first. As her success and happiness in the theatre increased, her happiness in private life waned, and Ethel Barrymore, true to her family traditions, has dedicated herself entirely to the stage. Is it little wonder then that her daughter has decided to follow in the distinguished footsteps of her forebears, the Barrymores and the Drews, through the stage door and onto the stage to shine in the glamorous haze of the footlights?

not be held responsible for the death of the woman, it being pointed out that it was a rainy night, that the street lighting was bad and that the driver had attempted to operate his car with adequate care and caution.

The victim was Mrs. Samuel Goldman, of 109 State Street, Philadelphia. She and her husband were attempting to cross 39th Street at Girard Avenue, that city, when they were struck by Auer's machine.

Mrs. Goldman was hurried to Lankenau Hospital, where she died the next day without regaining consciousness. Her husband was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital with severe injuries.

Strangely enough, the couple were on their way home to a happy family reunion when the accident occurred. Mrs. Goldman had been in a hospital for three months and was being taken home by her husband.

TORRESDALE MANOR

Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald and family, Eleanor and George, Jr., of Walnut avenue, have returned home after a visit to Mrs. MacDonald's parents in Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. Sarah Birkleback, of Walnut avenue, enjoyed entertaining her son and his family. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Birkleback, and daughter Marilyn, of Wissinoming, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Knoll, of Edgewood avenue, spent Tuesday evening in town, celebrating their wedding anniversary.

Messrs. Albert Vickers, Raymond Garvine, Robert Ganser, of Walnut avenue; Joseph Gano, of Locust avenue, Andalusia, and Thomas Vickers, of Philadelphia, enjoyed seeing the talkie "All Quiet On the Western Front" at the Circle on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Joseph Sharpe and Mrs. Albert Vickers, both of Walnut avenue, attended the Holme Theatre on Tuesday evening.

Thomas Vickers, of Philadelphia, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Vickers, of Walnut avenue, recently.

HULMEVILLE

Miss Mae Macken, of Glenside, will speak in the Neshaminy M. E. Church on Sunday morning, September 28th, in behalf of the W. C. T. U.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held on September 30th, at the home of Mrs. Darrah. Ladies are requested not to forget their packages.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Everitt, and Mrs. J. C. Everitt were visitors on Wednesday of Mrs. Wiggins; they also attended the Doylestown Fair.

World Series Sketches

Number 1

Robert ("Lefty") Grove, star south-paw of the Philadelphia Athletics, is expected to get his opportunity to shine in the 1930 World Series, a chance that Fate denied him last year. In the 1929 classic Manager Connie Mack used him as a relief pitcher in two games because the Chicago Cubs were supposed to be "death" on left-handers. All told, Grove twirled but 6 1-2 innings in the last world series.

But this year he is down as a starting pitcher and great things are looked for from him. For he has had a wonderful season, winning more than twenty-five ball games, which is quite a feat. He is one of the fastest pitchers in baseball.

"Lefty" is a tall, slim chap, with a soft Southern drawl. He doesn't care for publicity and rarely talks about himself. He is thirty years old. He was born in Lonaconing, Md., March 6, 1900. He is 6 feet, 2 1-2 inches tall and weighs 175 pounds. He bats and throws left handed.

He first played professional ball in 1920 with the Martinsburg club in the Blue Ridge League. The following season he was signed up by Baltimore of the International League and played with that club until the end of the 1924 season when Connie Mack purchased him for a price reputed to be $105,000.

His first year with the A's, 1925, he won 19 games and lost 12 for a percentage of .455; the following year he won 13 and lost 13 for a percentage of .500; in 1927 he got going in great shape winning 30 and losing 13 for a percentage of .696; in 1928 he did even better, winning 24 and losing only 8 for a percentage of .759. This year he won more than twenty-five ball games, quite a feat.

Grove's modesty is exemplified by a story they tell of him concerning a banquet in his honor in Philadelphia last Fall after the world series. After hearing scores praise his deeds on the diamond, he rose to speak. His speech broke all records for brevity. It was one word: "Thanks."

Channel Swim Glory Ebbs with the Tide

Hailed National Heroine Four Years Ago, Gertrude Ederle, Holder of Channel Record, Now In Oblivion at a New York Suburban Pool

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—There must be something enormously fascinating in swimming the English Channel. Like beauty contests, many have tried and few have succeeded. Still each year sees plenty of girls ready and anxious to make the tests.

The latest feminine swimmer to make the grade is a Channel is 19-year-old Peggy Duncan, a 200-pound South African girl of Scottish descent. But she failed to better Gertrude Ederle's record in 1926, of 14 hours and 31 minutes. Miss Duncan did it in 16 hours and 15 minutes.

Peggy is known as the strongest woman swimmer living. And that, of course, is not a title to be sneered at. At any rate the swim which had exhausted so many women before her, brought her large monetary benefits.

A British newspaper offered $5,000 to the first English girl who lowered the Ederle record in swimming the Channel. Hilda "Laddie" Sharp, failed in August 1928. Ivy Hawkes was another English girl to try for that $5,000 prize. She fell more than five hours behind Trudy's time. Mercedes Gieitz, London typist, came within 41 minutes of it when she successfully swam the Channel on her eighth attempt in October 1927.

All attempts having failed so far to lower the Ederle record, the holder, of which, teaching swimming at Rye Beach, New York, aware of fleeting fame, says:

"It wasn't worth it."

left Peggy not much the worse for wear. She had used the trudgeon stroke throughout and had only been prevented from bettering the Ederle record by muscle trouble caused by the temperature of the water.

It is extremely doubtful if Gertrude Ederle would have made the swim if she had known what she knows today. For Trudy has all but lost her hearing. Four years ago she returned to a welcome that was only equaled by Lindy's. She did a wonderful thing for America. Today she is teaching swimming in a pool in the suburbs of New York City.

Milie Gade Corson, the mother of two children, whose successful performance of Trudy's feat undoubtedly brought her large monetary benefits. A British newspaper offered $5,000 to the first English girl who lowered the Ederle record in swimming the Channel. Hilda "Laddie" Sharp, failed in August 1928. RHEUMATISM IS BANISHED BY FAMED KONJOLA

Phila. Man Could Scarcely Walk; Rejoices to Tell What
New Medicine Did

MR. WILLIAM HUSS

"Eight months ago my legs were practically useless, and the aches and pains were almost unbearable," said Mr. William Huss, 2043 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia. "I felt like an old man. I could hardly get out of bed in the morning, and finally had to give up my work entirely. I lost in weight and strength and suffered terribly both day and night."

"After reading what Konjola was doing for so many sufferers, I made up my mind to give this new medicine a trial. Before I had completed the third bottle I had obtained sufficient results to know that I had found the right medicine. Soon after that the stiffness and soreness began leaving my legs
